A message from Duncan

How good is life for those who hunger and thirst for right- relationships, because they will be satisfied.

Matthew 3. (BibleProject translation)

'Righteousness' is the word we would normally associate with this verse, but it's a tricky word. It gets bad press in our world for its close association with 'self-righteousness', a decidedly unattractive trait, of which Jesus will have some pithy things to say about when, a little later in the sermon on the mount, he comes to motes and beams (specks and planks!). Righteousness is also not an easy word to understand across the canon of scripture. 'Right living' or 'rightness' goes some way to de-jargonising it, but I love the above translation: 'right-relationships'.

Understanding righteousness as that which works towards and maintains right-relationships reminds us that at the centre of the nature of God is an eternal relationship of three. And made in his image, we are to understand relationships as the heart of what it is to flourish in our humanity: to live the good life. Righteousness understood as 'doing the right thing' is close but it can lead us in unhelpful directions - indeed towards self-righteousness. The list is ticked, we've passed the test, made the grade, and the reward is now due. Doing the right thing in this way is precisely the problem of the Pharisees in Matthew's gospel. It is a clinical and contractual way to approach God. God, however, is a God of covenant which is intensely relational. It is not that we 'do right', but that we 'do right by one another, and by God, as he 'does right by us' and his promises to us as his children.

In a world where human ties and relationships seem to be falling apart with tragic and massive consequences, on a personal, familial, national and international scale, let's pray that we would be people, and churches, who have a godly hunger and thirst for right-relationships and place a high priority on this in our lives and in the life of the church. Then we will have a half a chance of being the salt and light God dreams for us to be.

Grace and peace be with you all,

Duncan

Collect for the third Sunday of Lent

Almighty God,
whose most dear Son went not up to joy but first he suffered pain,
and entered not into glory before he was crucified:
mercifully grant that we, walking in the way of the cross,
may find it none other than the way of life and peace;
through Jesus Christ your Son our Lord,
who is alive and reigns with you,
in the unity of the Holy Spirit,
one God, now and for ever.

Prayers of Love and Faith

Thank you to those who were able to come along to the meeting last Sunday night, and particularly the way in which people shared their varied perspectives honestly and with grace. Let's continue to pray for one another as we continue to seek the will of God together.

Please pray for:

- Dave recovering from a stroke.
- Ben and healing for his mental health.
- Scarlett's recovery from long Covid.
- Katie suffering with epilepsy. Please pray that the right medication be found to control her seizures.

To add names to the prayer list, please contact the Church Office (stleonards_stpeters@btconnect.com) Names will be added to the list by express permission, and only first names will be published.
